NORTHAMPTON TOWN WOMEN MANAGEMENT DUO REACT TO FA CUP FIRST ROUND DEFEAT

Northampton Town Women joint-managers Josh Oldfield and Liam Williams remained positive despite their side's defeat at home to Ipswich Town in the Women's FA Cup first round proper two weeks ago.

The Cobblers exited the competition following the loss to their FA Women's National League Southern Premier Division opponents.

"We're disappointed that we're out of the cup, but we're so proud of the girls' efforts today," Williams said.

"We put in a shift and performed well against a good side.

"We asked the girls to make Ipswich work really hard for everything, and they did that.

"It can be deflating to play against a side that move the ball so well, but we were excellent out of possession and the scoreline doesn't reflect our performance."

COMMSAVE CREDIT UNION SUPPORT THE NORTHAMPTON TOWN WOMEN FOR ANOTHER YEAR

The Northampton Town Women are delighted to confirm their partnership with local credit union Commsave as their training kit sponsor for the 2023/24 season.

Commsave is one of the largest credit unions in the UK, with over 34,000 members. They are a not-for-profit financial co-operative, providing an easy way to save and a better way to borrow for over 30 years. They specialise in providing the ability to save and borrow direct from pay to employers all over the UK, such as communication workers, government departments, and a range of both private and public sector organisations like local authorities, and healthcare providers.

Commsave's relationship with the Northampton Town Women began as training kit sponsor last season where the team finished 5th in the FA Women's National League.

This season the side are hoping to build on what was a successful first season at this level with the credit union once again supporting the club as training kit sponsor.

Since sponsoring the team, Commsave have extended their partnership with the club, linking up with the men's side for the first time as their training kit sponsor for the 2023-24 season.
